

Irish Do Their Best but Can't Even Give the Game Away

JENNER LUNCHESES—LINDEN GOPHERS IN TITLE CLASH SUNDAY

ERRORS, TEN OF 'EM, CONVERT TITLE FRAY INTO WEIRD BATTLE

Presbies Won't Take Victory. Even as a Gift, so Fracas Ends 7-7.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

FROM the standpoint of the spectators the Little World series game yesterday between the First Presbyterians and St. Mary's was a huge success. From the standpoint of good baseball it was probably the most colossal flop ever presented in a Little World series. The final score was 7-7 and the last inning was played in almost total darkness. Eleven hundred persons saw the game.

The Irish did everything humanly possible to donate the game to the Presbyterians. However, Don Shoemaker, Presbyterian pitcher simply refused to allow his team to accept it—even as a gift. Working, I have no doubt, on the principle that unless he won it he didn't want it.

The Irish pulled nine errors in the field. They muffed every grounder, heaved wild tosses and booted the ball all over the outfield. But just as fast as they booted the Presbies a couple of runs, Shoemaker would again force the tying runs across the plate by heaving free passes to Irish batters.

Gene Gunder hurled a good game for the Irish and cracked out two hits to aid his own cause but it didn't do him any good. With nine errors behind him, he never had a chance. Shoemaker had one error behind him, that by Milt Pohler. However, the Presbie hurler was far from his usual form and simply couldn't locate the plate with any consistency.

Whoa, what a ball game! It was nothing less than a comedy of errors. But didn't we have fun, Johnnie!

Notre Dame Grid Captain

Bruins, Robins Battle for Third Place in Standings

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

Among the major league clubs which have no chance of getting anywhere in particular a couple of hot races still are going on.

Brooklyn and Chicago are arguing as to which shall get the third place out in the National league money division, but the struggle between Detroit and St. Louis for the top of the American league's second division is just as close.

After exchanging places several times within a short period, Detroit and St. Louis wound up in a tie yesterday when the Tigers were badly bumped by the Boston Red Sox while the Browns had a day off. After losing four games in a row and 12 of their last 13, the Red Sox came back behind Danny MacFayden's unbeatable pitching and shut out Detroit 5 to 0. MacFayden gave only three hits.

Cardinals lead Cleveland. There was no change in the standing of Brooklyn and Chicago as they each won a game and gained on the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants, the first and second place clubs, which were both defeated. Combining 14 hits off three Cincinnati pitchers with a few gift chances to score, the Robins had little trouble beating the Cincinnati Reds 5 to 3. A hat game behind the Cubs came through behind Bob Smith's five hit pitching to down the Phillies for the second time in succession 3 to 2.

The Pittsburgh Pirates resumed their pursuit of a first division berth by downing the New York Giants, who had interrupted their winning streak, 3 to 2.

Ben Cantwell and Wally Berger of the Boston Braves scored a bit too much for the champion Cardinals and Boston won 6 to 3.

Chicago took the heart out of New York's Yankees chase after a higher place than third in the American league with a great bit of fielding in the first inning and went on to down the Yankees 3 to 1. With Babe Ruth at bat in the first, the Sox pulled off a brilliant triple play when Sullivan smacked Ruth's grounder, tagged Combs then passed the ball on to Kerr and Blue for outs at second and first. The setback left the Yankee 24 games behind the idle Washington Senators.

Four American league clubs had an open day in their schedule.

ST. BOB KIRKPATRICK

The recreation baseball season in Marion for 1934 is nearly completed. Before another 10 days pass it will be entirely over as far as games are concerned. Of course, the city commission has yet to hold its annual banquet and get-together for the awarding of pennants and city championship trophies but for all practical purposes, the season is almost completed.

Sunday afternoon the finals of the first central Ohio recreation baseball tournament will be completed unless inclement weather forces the postponement for a week. Either the Linden Gophers of Columbus or the Jenner Lunches of Marion will win the honor of being the first central Ohio champions. Some of the best teams in this district have been in the tournament. Play has been hard-fought, but unusually clean and sportsmanlike. The team that wins the title tomorrow will have earned it. Local fans will undoubtedly be pulling for the Jenner Lunches, the Marion entry, to win. It will be a real battle and the result will be in doubt until the last spin is out.

The winner of the Tri-state recreation baseball tournament, conducted at East Liverpool, O., has requested a double header game with the winner of the central Ohio tournament for the championship of the area covered by the two tournaments. If played, and it probably will be, the games will take place at Lincoln park here on Sunday, Sept. 27. Arrangements have not been completed yet for the staging of the games. The outcome of the outcome of tomorrow's battle between the Gophers and Jenner Lunches.

It would be a good chance to compare the game as played here with that played in the eastern section of Ohio and the area surrounding that city. Such a game should be relayed by the legion of local softball fans.

The selections of the players for the all-Marion softball teams for 1934 have been made. A committee of umpires, each of which has seen every local player in action on more than one occasion this year, met last night and named three mythical teams. They will be published in the Star. Undoubtedly these selections will not meet with the usual approval of the fans or of the players themselves. No honorary team ever did. However, it is the opinion of the committee that no stronger team, offensively and defensively combined, could be chosen.

Major League Team To Travel a Circle of Seven.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The make-up of the major league baseball team which will play a series of games in the Orient this fall has been announced by Fred Lieb, New York sports writer, in charge of the tour.

The team members will include: Infielders—Lou Gehrig, Yankees; Frankie Frisch, Cardinals; Walter Marandino, Braves; and Willie Kanan, Indians.

Outfielders—Al Simmons, Athletics; Tom Oliver, Red Sox; and Frank O'Doul, Robins.

Pitchers—Bob Grove, Athletics; Larry French, Pirates; and Bruce Cunningham, Braves.

Catchers—Mickey Cochrane, Athletics; and Harold Rust, Tigers.

Umpires—George Kelly, Minneapolis; American Association, and Ralph Shivers, Buffalo, International league.

Umpire—Jack Reardon of the National league will officiate at all games.

SOFTBALL CROWN AT STAKE IN LINCOLN PARK GAME HERE

Nevada, Marion Merchants in First Half of Twin Bill at 1:30 P. M.

The biggest recreation baseball game Marion fans have had the privilege of witnessing this season that is the last year to describe the game Sunday at 2:30 p. m. between the Linden Gophers of Columbus and the Jenner Lunches of Marion. These two crack teams will clash at Lincoln park at this time in a battle which will decide the championship of central Ohio. Both have battled their way through a list of 18 other tournament entries and both will put up a terrific fight before being downed in the final game.

The championship battle between the Jenner nine and the capital city team will be preceded an hour earlier by a game between the Jva Lunches of Nevada and the Marion Merchants. The Nevada team was eliminated by the Gophers in the first round of the tourney and the Merchants were beaten by the Ashland Mohawks Rubber company, but both flashed exceptional strength and are expected to stage a thrilling preliminary prior to the main go. The game will start at 1:30 p. m.

SOFT TO TWIST

"Doc" Smith, well-known speedball artist, will probably do the hurling for the Gophers although Homer List will be ready to take the mound at the slightest signs of rain on the part of the lanky right hander. List does the first string hurling for the Gophers in Columbus but Smith has carried the team through the tourney here to date. He has to his credit, one no-hit, no-run game, one one-hit game and one three-hit performance.

He is backed by one of the most brilliant lineups to play on a Marion field in several seasons. At present the team is tied with one other in a play-off for the Columbus city softball championship. The team has been beaten but once this season and has held the capital city title for the last three consecutive seasons. Not a bad record and the Gophers are not exactly anxious to spoil it Sunday. Hence, a fast game is a certainty.

Jenner Nine Strong

The Jenner Lunches, with Francis Bacon, Jerry Niemeyer, Alvin Kish, Bob Merchant, Bob Gamble and others of equal ability will provide plenty of opposition for the Gophers. This is the first year in the field for the Lunches and they have compiled a good record for first year play. Not given much of a chance by fans to get as far as the finals of the central Ohio tourney, the Jenner nine has played a better season and is now rated nearly on a par with the Gophers. While not as individually brilliant as the Columbus team, they are nevertheless a capable organization and one that probably will force the Gophers the limit to capture the title.

The first game will commence promptly at 1:30 p. m. The championship battle will start at 2:30 p. m. with the Gophers and Ed Johnson will again officiate.

Merchant's Lineup

The lineup of the Marion Merchants will be as follows: First base, "Honey" Williams; Second base, Johnny Lusch; Shortstop, Sam Sharrock; Third base, Johnny Marshall; Left field, Glenn Price; Center field, "Fido" Robbins; Right field, Myron Gibson; Pitcher, Roscoe Rank and Catcher, George Hicklin. Admission prices will remain the same as at former central Ohio tournament games.

Bowling Statistics

The ladies All-Stars bowling scores of the first round games, league inaugurated its 1934 season rolling 157 and 158 for the two last night on the Recreation al-games. The league will roll each 157. Sharrock turned in the best Friday night.

Reserve Faces Tough Sked with Only Fair Outlook

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 22.—The Red Cats of Western Reserve, badly lashed in a "suicide" schedule a year ago, will try their claws on an equally hazardous list of foes this fall with prospects considered no better than "fair."

Tom Keedy, Reserve's new head coach, will have his work cut out for him with many good men lost by graduation and the material from the freshmen not so promising.

Keedy, however, is expected to lay the foundation for better things at Reserve. He succeeds Gordon Locke, former Iowa all-American star, who was forced to retire because of illness.

A squad of about 50, including 13 lettermen, will report to Keedy next Tuesday when football practice starts for Ohio conference schools. Bob Moss and John Heppel, star linemen, and Don Spohn and Ralph Meckel of the backfield were among those who graduated this spring, while Elmer Saxe, a stand-by in the backfield, will not be available.

The only veteran backs are Eddie Finnegan, quarter, George Malone and Sheldon Franz.

Captain Herb White is sure of one end position. Chuck Webster of Beloitaine, a regular last year, probably will pair with him. The center, guard and tackle position will be open to about 15 rugged fellows, none of them outstanding.

Reserve won only one game last year—the annual fight with Case—and has a tough schedule this year. Five strong teams will be met and there are only two contests which look like "breathers."

The complete schedule: Oct. 3, at Purdue; Oct. 9, Bowling Green; Oct. 17, at Pittsburgh; Oct. 24, Hiram; Oct. 31, at Oberlin; Nov. 7, at Syracuse; Nov. 14, Case; Nov. 21, Washington & Jefferson here; Nov. 28 (Thanksgiving), Ohio Wesleyan here.

The following shore birds and waterfowl are protected throughout the year: phalaropes, avocet, still, dowitcher, knot, sandpiper, sanderling, godwits, yellow-legs, willet, ruff, curlew, plovers, killdeer, ruddy turnstone, plovers, killdeer, gulls, terns, anhinga, cormorant, pelican, mako-war bird, wood duck, swans, ibises, bitterns, herons and cranes.

New High School Proves Value to City System

Value of the new Oakland Heights Junior High school to the city school system is plainly evident as the first week of the fall term closes, school officials pointed out today.

The new building directly alleviated overcrowding in four buildings and indirectly in five others. The 414 pupils in the new building are drawn from Olney avenue, Oakland Heights elementary, Glenwood and Central Junior High school Junior High students promoted from Glenwood, Oakland and Olney elementary schools go to the new school instead of Central as formerly. In this manner Central is relieved of this group of first year high school pupils and as a result is able to admit additional grade pupils from buildings in other sections of the city.

The new building also accommodated a number of grade pupils from the three elementary buildings in the southwest section of the city.

city thus offering further relief from overcrowding.

The total enrollment of 414 pupils at the new building is divided among the three grades in the following manner: Seventh 129, eighth 156 and ninth 129. Fifteen teachers including the principal James E. Frew are assigned to the building.

The district for the new junior high building includes pupils in the Glenwood and Oakland Heights districts and part of those from the Olney avenue building district. Those in the Olney avenue district east to Windsor street are in the new building, a district and those living on Windsor street have their choice between Central Junior or the new building. Foster lane and the area south of it is also included in the new building's district. Pupils living in the area south of Columbia street extending west to Main street and south to the city limits will be considered as living within a reasonable distance of the school and may secure permission if their parents so desire to be assigned to the new building.

Oakland Junior High School Hossler Brothers General Contractors

From Carloads of Materials to A Monument of PROGRESS

SINCE COMPLETION,

there has been and will continue to be, many complimentary remarks on the beauty and efficiency of this large and modern school.

And you can well imagine how proud we are to tell the public that we were instrumental in bringing this about, for we believe we have erected in this beautiful school another milestone in Marion's progress.

LAYMEN stop and watch with fascination the ease with which massive steel joists are swung into place. Then again while building operations gain wonderful headway with complete precision and much haste, the thinking onlooker sees SOMETHING MORE than mere operations. He sees the erection of a TRIBUTE to the city—to those with whom the responsibility of construction was entrusted—to ALL who had a part, no matter how small or seemingly insignificant.

In case of the beautiful new Oakland building, the thinking onlooker sees a glowing and lasting TRIBUTE to an IDEAL as well as an IDEA—not merely a structure of four walls, concrete and steel, but a modern institution of learning, constructed to aid Marion's younger citizens.

Hossler Brothers are happy to have had the pleasant responsibility of being the General Contractors of the new Oakland Building, and hereby thank the entire school board for its unselfish and whole-hearted support.

The Prodigal Repents

BY REV. TYLER GATES

Pastor St. Paul's Lutheran Church Text: Luke 15:11-19.

THERE is a road that leads downward and upward to complete destruction and degradation. Like many men the prodigal son realized that he was on this road and repented and was saved. It is repentance like that of the prodigal that saves us. Repentance is not just sorrow or remorse for sin nor fear of God and punishment. The prodigal turned back home to the father and abandoned his sinful life. Repentance then is to turn back and to change our course of life from sinfulness to righteousness.

There are two reasons for the repentance of the prodigal son. First he remembered his father and his relationship with him. He said, "I will arise and go to my father." He was a son of God and his distressing results was not becoming of one with such relations. As sons of God, created in the image of God, men are capable of better lives than they live. Therefore ye sinners, repent, "Arise and go to the Father." You are not animals but spiritual beings, sons of God.

Secondly, the prodigal remembered the love and mercy of the father. In his sin and despair he wanted this more than anything else in the world. Nothing else will ever suffice. But many ask, "Will the Father receive me and help me if I return? Is it not too late? Friends it is never too late. Let it be known to men that God is a God of mercy and love. As a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him." "Him that cometh to Me, I will in no wise cast out." So the prodigal turned back home and was received by the father and given the best things in his father's house.

Turn back ye sinners for ye are sons of God. Turn back and be assured that you will be received and be given the crown of life.

Death of Dr. McVay.

Word of the death of Dr. H. R. McVay at his home in Athens Friday brought deep regret to a large circle of friends and acquaintances here, made while he served as head of the city schools.

For forty years an educator, Dr. McVay was recognized the state over as a man brilliant intellectually. But he was far more than this; he was one who had the ability to impress those associated with him in educational pursuits, with the result that his influence was carried all the way along the line from the youth in the higher to the toils in the lower grades of our schools.

And he was not only an educator; he was a good citizen beyond the ordinary in the interest he manifested in civic affairs. His duty as a citizen, as he saw it, did not end with working for the betterment of the schools; it embraced the encouragement of every movement looking to the moral, social, physical and commercial betterment of the city. His interest in these lines was not perfunctory; it was deep and forceful, and unstintingly devoted along them. And he was companionable and friendly—a desirable acquisition for any social gathering.

These were the qualities, as well as the intellectual side of Dr. McVay, which endeared him to a large element of the people of Marion.

The Hope of Peace.

The philosophy of international pacification is attacked by Lady Drummond Hay, writing for British magazine readers. Lady Hay, possessor of a blameless service record in the World war, unequivocally asserts that humanity owes more to war than it does to peace. She advances her argument into future application, furthermore, by saying that peace leads to national enervation and decay, while war inspires people to progress.

This belief is an example of the most dangerous kind of rationalism. Lady Hay has fallen into the trap of reasoning that what is must be good; that what isn't must be bad. War is good. Peace, which the world never has enjoyed, in the sense that nations were free to progress unencumbered by huge armament burdens, war debts and paralyzing fear, must be bad. Yet, the assertion is solemnly made that peace leads to enervation and decay.

Lady Hay, decidedly more naive than some of the proponents of war as an agency of progress, underlines her faulty reasoning by asking: "Has man reached the stage of moral and spiritual advancement where he can be depended upon to carry on human progress without the impulse given by the terrible scourge of war and revolution, to break down the barriers of fossilized conservatism and blinding prejudice?" and because "humanity has not yet reached a sufficiently spiritual development consistently and steadily to progress in peace," she dismisses the matter by saying that war can do more than peace to hasten the time when peace will mean progress and war will be outlawed.

That amounts to saying that since there always has been crime, unbridled lawlessness will do more than orderliness to bring orderliness. While such specious arguments are being advanced to discourage those who dare to hope that war may be abolished, they are actually being encouraged by information given out concerning effects of the last war and prospects for the next war. Forty thousand World war veterans are in government hospitals, Brigadier General Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, tells the state convention of the West Virginia American legion. The government has spent more than $14,500,000,000 for relief among veterans of all wars; $1,000,000 is being spent each working day at the present among veterans. Settlement of World war debts is the world's most difficult problem.

Meanwhile, scientists frantically compete with each other to compound formulae for new and more deadly gases to kill human beings, and government employees implicitly predict that the next war will be fought with chemicals, which they say, will be the most humane way of killing yet devised. By some complicated course of reasoning, young men and the girls they marry are expected to be in possession of all the facts and will agree with Lady Hay that war inspires people to progress and that peace leads to national enervation. It is an impossible for them to do this as it is for those who have endured the horrible experiences of war and who now are oppressed by the destruction left in its wake. Pacific tendencies in modern thought did not just happen; they were forced by experience and reason. Remove the hope that war may be abolished, and the civilized world would be stifled in its own pessimism.

A funeral parade was staged over Broadway for "Depression," a day or two ago. The silly season seems to have held on this year longer than ordinarily.

Residents of the north shore of Lake Winnebago, up in Wisconsin, tell of seeing, a night or two ago, a meteor "as big as a house." It's simply awful to think what the change from the one-time favorite Wisconsin beverage to the stuff the gentlemanly bootleggers sell has done to a one-time honest and truthful people.

A member of the senate finance committee predicts that, if the contemplated raids on the federal treasury are not put down, the deficit at the end of the 1932-33 fiscal year will aggregate $3,000,000,000. What do treasury raiders care about a little item like that—or the politicians, for that matter, if it makes votes for them?

Using Cornucopia's Overflow. The world's first food administrator, Joseph, had a simple formula: store up enough in time of plenty to provide for the time of want. He caused storehouses to be built in Egypt and filled with generous outpourings of nature's cornucopia. When the lean years came there was enough for all—even for Joseph's aged father and his deceitful brother.

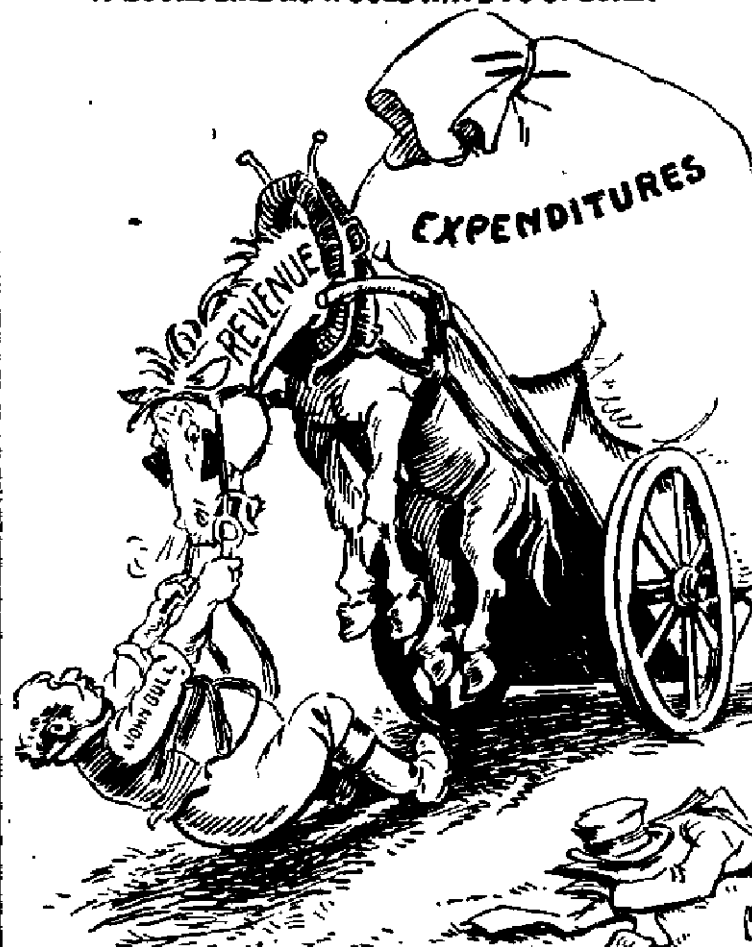

Joseph's formula is still good, even if it was overlooked in the fat years that drew to a close in the fall of 1929. Hundreds of communities, blessed with an abundance of fruit and vegetables this summer, are turning to it as eagerly as if it were the brand new promulgation of a popular politician. The idea, introduced without much fanfare, has spread like wildfire over the state.

Farmers, with more vegetables and fruit than they can sell, have contributed their surplus. Housewives have contributed canning and labor. Business concerns have supplied sugar. In one instance, at least, an industrial concern has offered its equipment to dry fruit. "Save the surplus" has become a slogan—spontaneously.

This means that next winter, when it will be necessary to supply food to needy families, many communities will be able to depend on their own resources. Instead of being obliged to raise money with which to buy food at the outset, they can provide the food directly and use the money for other purposes. Incidental benefits accrue to manufacturers of canning equipment, while the injury that is done to retailers and wholesalers dealing in canned and dried fruits and vegetables is slight.

The August statement of the postoffice department shows a falling-off in receipts in fifty of the larger cities of the land of 861 per cent, and indicates a deficit for the fiscal year of $10,000,000. But a trifle such as the total given will hardly stop the other department and members of congress from using the postal service as a sort of a free pack horse.

IT LOOKS LIKE HE WOULD HAVE TO UNLOAD.

Editorial Opinion.

PLAIN TALK TO FEDERAL EMPLOYEES.

Postmaster General Brown, addressing the national convention of letter carriers in Oakland, California, said very frankly that he was opposed to a five-day week for federal employees without any reduction in the compensation paid to them. He declared that a five-day week without a corresponding decrease in pay would lead to an artificial increase of commodity prices, diminished markets for goods and lessened need for labor, "adding to our economic difficulties instead of solving them."

It required some courage to tell these truths to a powerful national organization. Most politicians like to flatter their hearers and promise them impossible things in the belief that what they say will all be forgotten by the time election day comes around. Mr. Brown was refreshingly different. This is all the more admirable because the letter carriers are the most popular class of public employees. For years they were underpaid, but by degrees inequalities have been remedied and their condition has improved. But the postmaster general, in speaking, had the grand army of public employees of every kind in mind when he said that they were the most fortunate group in our whole body of citizens at the present time.

Private industry has been compelled to lay off thousands of men, but the personnel of the government has been practically untouched. Being on fixed schedules of pay, established some years ago, they find themselves, says Mr. Brown, "with substantially increased earnings, by reason of the increased purchasing power of their wages." He adds to this the advantages that come with security in their jobs, liberal sick leave and vacation privileges and pensions on retirement. In view of the further fact that they are exempt from income taxes, they will be wise not to ask for fewer hours and more pay during this crisis in our national history. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

Dinner Stories.

"Some of the primitive instincts linger in the highest civilization," said the statesman. "Yes," replied the ethnologist; "many of our communities can not get away from the idea of a high silk hat and a high silk hat is thereby qualified to be a leader."

"Did the medicine I gave you do any good?"

"A wonderful remedy, doctor. I took three teaspoonsful and my cough went. I rubbed three spoonfuls into my knees for rheumatism, and the rest went to clean the silver."

Lady, interviewing applicant—"And do you know anything about invalid cooking? My husband is very delicate."

Applicant—"Indeed I do, mum. I looked for two years for a large family and when I left they were all invalids."

Race Deterioration Myth.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We often hear discussions as to whether or not our race is degenerating. The claim is often made by older persons that things are not as they used to be, that the youth of their day were far superior to the youth of today. Their boast relates to mental superiority, as well as to physical strength.

There is no doubt that our forebears endured more hardships than we do, but this does not mean we could not endure them. Circumstances have changed so that we do not face such demands as did our forebears.

At Harvard university a very careful survey has been made of the height and weight of college students. This study included two thousand pairs of fathers and sons, and five hundred mothers and daughters of three generations.

This study revealed that the present generation of Harvard men, whose fathers and grandfathers attended that college, represents one of the tallest groups in the world. At present the students average in height five feet, ten and one-tenth inches. The increase in stature over a period of eighty years has been at the rate of about one inch for every thirty-two years.

All measurements have increased with the exception of head breadth, breadth of hips and length of the upper arm. Leg strength has increased more than the trunk length and the thighs have elongated more than the shins.

The study shows that present-day students are taller and more slender than their fathers. This is the case even though the average weight has increased by eight pounds. The increases are noted particularly in leg length, shoulder breadth and chest circumference.

It is of interest to note that a similar study made of women of three generations also shows marked improvement in the physique. The present generation of girls, according to the figures, indicates that they are one and one-tenth inches taller and seven pounds heavier than their mothers. They have greater chest expansion, lung capacity and chest development, showing notable physical superiority to their mothers.

It is natural that the older generation always claims to be superior to the present generation. I am sure that when my son grows old he will claim his generation was the very best. It is my turn now to claim that mine is far superior to his!

Stellar Astronomy.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

To the layman, the advances made in astronomy during the past century and a half are almost unbelievable. Even the scientist, the astronomer, is sometimes amazed to discover how little had actually been accomplished towards understanding the universe as a whole prior to the last quarter of the eighteenth century.

As pointed out by Hector Macpherson in "Modern Cosmogony," amazingly little had been accomplished in the field of stellar astronomy. The sun, the moon, the earth, and the other planets, their motions and relations to each other had chiefly been studied. The stars had been studied chiefly as a sort of framework for the motions of the planets of our galaxy.

What was the nature and extent of the actual discoveries in stellar astronomy? Macpherson enumerates them quickly. Galileo had discovered the Milky Way, the nebulae, the stars. Temporary stars were observed by Tycho, Galileo and Kepler, and one or two of the more prominent variable stars had been detected by Fabricius, a Dutch amateur, and by Montanari, an Italian observer. A few double stars had been discovered—almost accidentally—because they could not escape discovery—by Riccioli in Italy, Houghers in Holland, and Hooke in England. The Orion nebula had "swam into the picture" into that of Halley in 1714. Finally, in 1781, Halley obtained definite proof of the proper motions of the four bright stars, Sirius, Arcturus, Betelgeuse, and Aldebaran, thus verifying a brilliant guess on the part of that versatile genius, Giordano Bruno; and by 1786 the proper motions of some fifty-seven stars had been catalogued by Tobias Mayer of Göttingen.

This sums up the catalogue. It is singularly, almost incredibly meager. Astronomers scarcely knew enough to go on in the further study of the stars. They had made an interesting generalization, rejecting the fantastic picture of the firmament as a sphere with a lot of stars stuck on its inner surface, and supposing that the stars were uniformly scattered throughout a space of infinite extent. Moreover, he affirmed that each star was the center of a planetary system. These generalizations like this had to be verified. These investigations and verifications constitute the beginning of modern astronomy. —Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Character of Colonel Kilbourne.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

James Kilbourne, the leader of the colony which founded Worthington, which, by the way is older than Columbus by more than a dozen years, came up through trials and vicissitudes, and in spite of obstacles calculated to discourage a man, made a notable success out of life.

His father, Josiah Kilbourne, did not spell the name with the "line" was a Revolutionary war soldier, not only three members of his family in the War of the Revolution, but practically all of his property.

The elder Kilbourne was obliged to give up his farm and to retire to a smaller and less productive one. Even that, because of unprofitable operations, he was obliged to mortgage, and in consequence lost it, so that he was obliged to say to his son, when he was sixteen years old, that he would have to shift for himself.

Young Kilbourne found employment first with a farmer, working for board and clothes. Later he took a position with a clothier, who recognized his ability and eagerness to acquire an education, increased his compensation, and also gave him instructions in English, Latin and Greek languages, and in mathematics and surveying. At the end of three years he was placed in entire charge of the establishment.

Feeling himself now established in life, he married before he was twenty. Lucy, daughter of John Fitch, to whom he was generally given the honor of inventing the steamboat, found application to business and the use of funds undermined his health and for nearly two years he was an invalid, but, health restored, he resumed business and became the wealthiest man in Granby. He bought five farms—one being that from which his father had been ejected. Always being of a devout nature, he had been of great assistance to the Episcopal church of Connecticut, and was by him ordained. Trained to the use of arms and military discipline, he held the rank of colonel in the militia.

It would be difficult to find a leader better fitted for the new Ohio colony than he—qualified as he was as a business man, a soldier, a minister and a surveyor.

What Will Better Marion?

The following are the answers of a number of citizens to the question, "What Will Better Marion?"—the second in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, to get a community insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer.

Nothing is wrong with Marion that is not wrong with the nation and the world. Too great concentration of wealth or perhaps power over those who must labor is one of the things that may be local. Where appetite is more in the individual than in the feeding of his clothing and shelter, the law of the laborer, who is robbed of freedom in the selection of his merchant, his doctor, or his undertaker. Housed in luxury and convenience, fed with the food of the Gods, some of our local big men permit the housing of employees in styes and children of these employees to be deprived of proper feeding and clothing. Arrogance on the part of the employer will prevent anything being done by any civic agency to better this situation. God alone can do that and God is busy.

A change of heart or an awakening on the part of the individual to the fact that Marion can not and will not progress until each individual makes an effort to do his share toward the upbuilding of Marion.

It is my opinion that if more people would invest in Marion real estate and become homeowners, it would be a forward step in bettering conditions in Marion. Factories and shops, whenever possible, should employ men who are residents or will become residents of the city and county of Marion. Financiers and non-residents of the city and county should not be employed when either the taxpayers or renters of home in the city and county are idle.

CONSTANCE BENNETT AND FATHER PAIR IN OHIO PICTURE

Constance Bennett and her father, Richard Bennett, are to be seen in "Bought" the cinema show which will open a four-day showing Sunday at the Ohio theater.
Another star in the picture is Ben Lyon.

Miss Bennett portrays the character of Stephanie Dale, a modern girl whose one ambition is to shine in the millionaire world from which her poverty-and questionable birth bar her. As selfish as she is beautiful she is willing to live in idleness until the death of her mother forces her to go to work as a mannequin in a fashionable shop. Later she is a secretary to a wealthy physician.

She leaves the young writer who loves her, curly dismisses Meyer her benefactor and by false stories about her distinguished advisory gets herself engaged to a rich man. The story is human and abounds in suspense.

Thrilling adventures as seen divers fall to the lot of Jack Holt and Richard Cromwell who furnish the action in "Fifty Fathoms Deep" which opens Sunday for a three days' run at the Marion theater. Loretta Sayers is the woman in the case.

Holt and Cromwell are widely different in temperament, the former being a quick-hitting adventurer who takes life as he finds it and the latter an idealist, little interested in women. The two are pals until Plinky falls in love with Myra Madden, a woman of rather colorful past and little prospect of reforming. Her home life is shared with Florrie another waterfront gold digger of equally shady reputation.

The story comes to a climax when Cromwell goes below to rescue Holt and finds Myra and the truth. In a way, the film ends happily.

Sally Eilers, the much-discovered screen actress came into her own as a dramatic actress in "Bad Girl," which opens at the Palace theater Monday. Sharing honors with her in the production is James Dunn, the unknown youngster who was made a star in the play,
his first picture.
The picture was adapted from Vina Delmar's novel by the same name and was produced by the Fox Film Corp.

Flora Ziegfeld once selected Miss Eilers as the most beautiful brunette in Hollywood. During the filming of "Bad Girl" she was required to wear a wedding gown.
At first she considered wearing her own wedding dress but after considering the damage that might be done on the set she vetoed the idea. Instead she permitted the studio wardrobe department to copy it in detail.

BUGYRUS TEACHER IS WED TO DENTIST

BUGYRUS, Sept. 12—Before an improved altar, banked with palms, ferns and huge baskets of multi-colored gladioli, Rev. W. A.
Shuman, Episcopal pastor of Washington, performed the single-ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Margaret Henneuse, local teacher and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Henneuse, and Dr. Carl
V. Umbaugh, dentist of Springfield, O. This afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents here, the marriage was solemnized in the presence of 60 relatives and friends.

Proceeding the ceremony, Miss Virginia Wise played on the piano, the "Old Refrain" and accompanied Mrs. John Zook, soprano, who sang Cushman's "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly."

As Miss Virginia Wise sounded Lohengrin's wedding march, the wedding party entered and took their places. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mrs.
Richard Millard of Centerville, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid and Richard E.

IT'S up to you to open an account for every one of your youngsters and see that they add to it each week or month—this will foster in them the habit of saving and a plan for the needs of early manhood or womanhood.

THEN the stiffening of the moral backbone and the development of the judgment are sure to come with the practice of thrift.

Just Things

—BY EDNA S. DUTTON—

The Weather

JUST as we get ourselves bolstered up to a point of saying the thermometer goes haywire as we find ourselves using the radiator on the old pump. What a corner the summer stage! Those of the fairer sex who complain their reducing exercises with pleasure, pursuing the gentle art of boiling should have lost pounds this week out according to the scales it was labor loss. There's just a couple of things wed like to know and here they are. What is it that when you eat that fatal piece of coconut cream pie that you inevitably take on pounds and when by eating four every bit of will power you possess you let it alone you never lose an ounce—and why when you will power fails you and you do eat that piece of coconut cream pie you don't walk a block until you meet someone who seems to have just finished a cream pie eating marathon and every time put on a pound?

Yens

ALADDIN'S lamps were where one might get a rub or two out of them occasionally it would be interesting to know just what first requests would be. We know one would be for curls. Early experiences may be responsible for such a year for this particular request recalls vividly the experiences of having her hair done up in rings and even then the gods and the weatherman had to lend mighty friendly towards her if the temporary curls lasted throughout the last day of school. Can you imagine anyone wanting curls so badly that when the teacher said why so and so your hair used to be curly so and so answered yes when all the curls she had ever known were grown with tears a sore head and a sleepless night. Anyway the picture with the two curls falling over the shoulder oh so natural like still brings a thrill.

What Stars Eat

WHAT does your favorite movie star like when he or she is really hungry? Of course those divine looking creatures never look as though they ever thought of nibbling anything but strawberries, gold fish and such delicacies but those who eat themselves up to know declare otherwise. Richard Arlen, George Bancroft, Nancy Carroll, Gary Cooper, Freddie March, Stuart Erwin, Jack Oakie, Buddy Rogers and Sylvia Sydney like steak or roast beef. Tallulah Bankhead, Claudette Colbert, Phil lips Holmes, Wynne Gibson and Irving Pichel favor chicken. Maurice Chevalier and Peggy Shannon fall for chicken and in case you entertain Olive Brook or Charlie Ruggles be sure and have ham and sweet potatoes.

Bauer's brother and wife Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Euseke.

Hugh Shulte of 181 Olney avenue has gone to New Concord where he will be a senior at Muskingum college.
